The NIHR CLAHRC Oxford, Oxford Biomedical Research Centre and Oxford Health Biomedical Research Centre will be running a series of eight workshops in 2019 for patients and members of the public.

Each workshop will cover a different stage of the research cycle and discuss ways in which patients and members of the public can get involved.

Although this is a series of workshops, each one will be a complete event in itself and you don’t need to attend all of them.

The workshops are open to anyone who is interested in patient and public involvement (PPI), whether or not you have any experience, but will be of most interest and relevance to people living in the Thames Valley and surrounding area.

Why not tell a friend who is new to PPI about them – we’re keen to reach more people.

Places are free but limited, and we will operate a waiting list in case of cancellations. To book, please go to our Eventbrite page: www.eventbrite.co.uk/o/working-together-17980209561

If you would like to find out more before booking, please visit: www.clahrc-oxford.nihr.ac.uk/PPI_WORKSHOPS_2019 or contact Polly Kerr polly.kerr@phc.ox.ac.uk, Lynne Maddocks lynne.maddocks@phc.ox.ac.uk, or Claire Murray claire.murray@oxfordhealth.nhs.uk